A 3D exploded view of a modular office partition system. It shows two identical workstation units arranged side-by-side. Each unit consists of a light gray desk top, a tan-colored L-shaped partition wall, and a tan-colored back panel. The units are supported by four adjustable legs. Red rectangular blocks are placed between the units, likely representing additional partitioning or storage options. The entire system is shown in an exploded view, highlighting the individual components and their assembly points.
